GRAMMAR

Hi guys! This list of exercises was developed to help you revise and practice the use of Auxiliary Verbs (as seen on Unit 1B of your book). Please check page 133 and the explanation below before starting it.

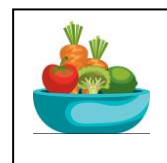

- We use neither/nor + auxiliary verb + subject to agree to negative sentences.
  - If there is an auxiliary verb in the previous sentence, we use the same verb to agree. If there is no auxiliary verb in the previous sentence, we use do/does for present or did for past.
- E.g. A: I can't stand football! B: Neither can I.

- In a reply question we use the same auxiliary verb as in the previous sentence.
  - If there is no auxiliary verb in the previous sentence, we use do/does for present or did for past.
  - If the verb in the previous sentence is positive, the reply question is positive and if the verb in the previous sentence is negative, the reply question is also negative.
- E.g. A: I've got a terrible headache. B: Have you?

- We use an auxiliary verb in question tags. If the sentence is positive, we use the negative form of the auxiliary and if the sentence is negative, we use the affirmative form.
  - For suggestions, we use the form shall we in the question tag.
- E.g. You're good at grammar, aren't you?

- When we want to add emphasis to a verb, we often stress the auxiliary verb, if there is one, when we speak.
  - We normally show this emphasis when we want to contradict what somebody says.
  - If there is no auxiliary verb in the previous sentence, we add do/does (for present) or did (for past).
- E.g. I don't work out every day, but I do eat healthy food, which contributes to my good shape.

- We use auxiliary verbs to avoid repetition.
  - If the first part of the sentence contains an auxiliary verb, we use the same verb in the second part.
  - If the first part doesn't contain an auxiliary verb, we use do or did in the second part.
- E.g. She took a risk, which is what I did, too.
